$750,000 Sewer Extension Project is Proposed Here

PROPOSAL MAY COME TO VOTE IN NOVEMBER

Council To Meet Wednesday Night To Consider Submitting Plan to Taxpayers

WOULD ISSUE BONDS

55 Per Cent of Ballots Would Assure Success of Improvement

The first definite action in connection with plans for submitting proposed enlargement of Marion's sewer system to the voters at the November election is scheduled at an adjourned session of city council, Wednesday night.

The sewer extensions, planned to protect the health of the community and to eliminate danger of flood conditions which have prevailed in the past, would cost approximately $750,000, according to preliminary estimates.

Believing that voters of the city are in a mood to approve the project this year, council expects to pass a resolution Wednesday night certifying an outline of the financing to the county auditor.

Comes Under New Law

This action is to be taken under provisions of a new law which requires the county auditor to compute the tax rate which will be necessary for paying off bonds issued to pay for the sewer extensions.

The auditor will then report back to council and the proposal is then certified to the board of elections to be placed on the ballot in November.

The plan is to issue bonds running from 25 to 30 years and it is estimated that an annual tax levy of about one mill would be necessary to pay off the indebtedness and interest. The people, should the proposal be submitted, will vote on the levy.

Majority Vote Needed

Under the new law, the proposal will carry if approved by 55 per cent o more of the voters cast in November.

Advocates of the sewer extensions are confident that the project will carry. When submitted at several elections in the past, the proposal received a majority vote but the margin was not large enough to comply with the law in effect at that time. A two-thirds majority was required then.

CLAIM CLUBHOUSE RAID ELECTION "GRANDSTAND"

80 Men and Eight Women Face Mayor in Cleveland Suburb

Cleveland, Aug. 9—Hearings for 80 men and eight women, arrested in a clubhouse raid last night, were in progress today before Mayor Oliver D. Jackson, of Garfield Heights, a suburb of Cleveland.

The raiding party, consisting of Cleveland and Garfield Heights policemen, led by Mayor Jackson, surrounded the building formerly occupied by George Himmelstein's Grand Fraternity Gambling Club. A "stag party" was in progress, featured by dancing by the women, according to police.

Political foes of Mayor Jackson, who is a candidate for renomination at the primary election today, charged that the raid was an "eleventh hour grandstand play." Supporters of Claude Myers, Jackson's opponent for the Democratic nomination, asserted that there were other and worse "dives" in the village which the mayor has failed to disturb.

New Philadelphia, Aug. 9—The Klein and Moore mine which ceased operations last Friday when its 25 employes joined the United Mine Workers, resumed operations today when the operators signed a tentative agreement with T. J. Price, subdistrict president. The Jacksonville wage scale is to be paid pending a permanent settlement of the wage controversy.

The Deneo mine of the Sharon Valley Coal Co. near Newcomb which had operated on a tentative Jacksonville wage scale, was closed today following a decision of the owners Monday night. Fourteen miners were affected.

OFFICIALS YAWN WHILE VOTERS PASS BY BOOTHS

Lightest Primary Vote in History of City Expected Here Today

113 CAST IN 12 PRECINCTS

Only Ballots Cast in Two Stations Are Those of Workers

Today's primary election in Marion will have two marks of distinction when it is recorded on the pages of local political history.

First, the vote, according to a survey of the situation made at noon, will be the lightest ever recorded at a primary election here and second, it inaugurates the six-ward system in the city.

Under ordinary conditions, the fact that this is the first vote ever taken for nomination of six ward councilmen—only four having served in the past—would mean a larger outpouring of the electorate than usual.

But this primary is not to be classed as ordinary. There are only three contests for nominations on the two tickets and the voters apparently decided that it would be a waste of time to cast their ballots for candidates who are certain to win out regardless of how many persons go to the polls.

Only 113 Votes

Reports at noon today showed that only 113 votes had been cast at 12 of the city's 30 precincts. This represented about three per cent of the actual voting strength of these precincts, indicating that by the time the polls close at 6:30 o'clock tonight, the total number of ballots cast may reach in the neighborhood of 10 per cent of the citizenry entitled to exercise the right of suffrage.

The chances are, however, that it will not run 10 per cent but even that figure will rank this primary as a record breaker for small patronage.

When the survey was started at noon today it was the intention to make a complete canvass of all the city's precincts, but after the 12 had been reached it was decided that further inquiry would be useless. The percentage of votes being cast was apparently uniform throughout the city.

ADMINISTRATION'S NAVY PLANS ARE KEPT SECRET

Congress Expected To Hear Proposals for Moderate Building Program

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 9—Administration plans for a new navy building program remained in secrecy today following an overnight conference between President Coolidge and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, but statements emanating from both gave clear indication that at least a "moderate" program for increasing America's light cruiser strength might be expected.

In behalf of Mr. Coolidge it was stated that the nation is now in the process of a moderate building program which he expected to be carried to its conclusion. Wilbur announced the navy general board is now working out the details of the plan which is to be submitted to the next session of congress.

GEORGE B. KNAPP RESIGNS POST AS C. OF C. HEAD

Will Continue as Salaried Manager of Organization Until Sept. 1

CITES LACK OF FUNDS

Board Accepts Offer To Serve Without Remuneration to Nov. 1

At the first meeting of the Marion Chamber of Commerce directors since March at which a quorum was represented, George B. Knapp yesterday rendered his resignation, effective Sept. 1, next.

Mr. Knapp's request to be relieved of his duties as president and director of the chamber was mailed to Josiah Bindley, chairman of the board, several weeks ago, copies of the letter being sent to each member of the board.

Explains Stand

After consideration and discussion of routine business, Mr. Knapp explained that he was brought to the decision to resign because of the shortage of funds and inability to collect dues from scores of business men who had signed membership cards. He insisted that his position be understood and accepted by the board as an untenable one and that his resignation be accepted while the institution is solvent.

Nine members of the board of 15 were present, including H. B. Hane, Horace Ballinger, George E. Frank, W. J. Gorton, Edward K. Ubler, Charles E. Merkel, Harry J. Barnhart, Roy D. Moore and George B. Knapp. Mr. Hane addressed the meeting briefly, accepting for himself and the board as a whole responsibilities for its dereliction in failing to co-operate properly with Mr. Knapp, predicted that renewed efforts to arouse the membership to a realization of what has been accomplished would make it possible to continue the program that has been started, and urged Mr. Knapp to withdraw his resignation.

Vote on Resignation

After much discussion on this subject, in which Mr. Knapp insisted that he had acted for what he regarded as the best interests of the chamber and refused to reconsider his decision, the motion to accept the resignation was voted upon. On roll call all members present voted "no" except Mr. Merkel who said he was not voting because there was no apparent source of revenue.

DONITHEN MAY MANAGE BEGG CAMPAIGN, REPORT

Marion Attorney Refuses To Confirm Rumors from Washington

According to reports in circulation in state political circles, Hoke Donithen, Marion attorney, will manage the campaign of Congressman James T. Begg of Sandusky, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Ohio next year.

Today Mr. Donithen refused either to deny or confirm the rumor, merely stating that he "had nothing to say."

The first inkling of the rumors to reach Marion came today in news dispatches from Washington, where the Begg candidacy for governor is being watched with unusual interest, due to the Sandusky man's prominence in congress for several terms.

The Washington dispatches appeared to indicate that Donithen has either consented to direct the Begg campaign or is giving the matter serious consideration.

Donithen is one of the best-known Republicans in Ohio, having attained political prominence as manager of the Coolidge campaign in this state in 1924.

DECISION ON M'KINLEY LAKE IS UP TO PARK BOARD, CLAIM

CITY COUNCIL REFERS PLANS TO COMMISSION

40 Property Owners Petition To Have Place Drained and Beautified

Responsibility for the future of McKinley park lake rests entirely with the city park commission, according to a decision reached by members of council at their meeting last night.

After receiving communications expressing conflicting opinions as to what should be done with the lake, council voted to refer the entire problem to the park board with a request for recommendations and an estimate of the probable cost of proposed changes or improvements.

A petition signed by 40 property owners residing in the vicinity of McKinley park was received, asking that the lake be drained and the place converted into a sunken garden or otherwise beautified. The petition, sent originally to the park commission, asserted that the lake is a "hazard to life and a menace to health."

Board Favors Plan

Accompanying the petition in its presentation to council was a communication from O. S. Rapp, chairman of the park commission, who said that the commission favors eliminating the lake in accordance with the plan suggested.

Opposition to the project was voiced in a communication from Harland Kerr, 312 Thew av., who resides near the park. Mr. Kerr's letter, addressed to Emery E. Murphy, president of council, registers a vigorous protest against destroying "Marion's only body of water." He declared that the lake is needed not only as a feature of the park but to provide an outlet for drainage from territory to the east, including the Harding Memorial site.

Admitting that the lake has been neglected in the past, he said that this condition can easily be remedied by eliminating objectionable conditions.

Division of Opinion

"It is clear that there is a division of opinion among persons interested in this question," the president of council stated, "and I believe that it would be unwise for council to take action at this time. It appears that the park commission is trying to 'pass the buck' to council when this problem is plainly one for the commission to solve."

At Murphy's suggestion, council approved a motion requesting the park commission to consider the matter and report back its recommendations.

The commission, Chairman Rapp said, in his communication, is without funds necessary for changes or improvements at the lake and suggested that council provide for the financing. Members of council agreed that this would be done as soon as the commission comes to some decision and outlines satisfactory plans.

The park commission, Rapp's letter

SUPPLY OF WHISKY ADEQUATE FOR YEARS

Resumption of Distilling for Medicinal Purposes Not Necessary, Lowman States

Washington, Aug. 9—America's supply of medicinal liquor is adequate to meet legitimate needs—resumption of distilling will not be permitted for several years.

This announcement was made today by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, ending a long drawn out fight over the question of liquor for the sickroom and the physician's use.

The treasury will not make an effort at the next session of congress to bring about passage of the whisky law, setting up a semi-federal corporation for replenishment of the medicinal stock.

A thorough investigation of the stocks of whisky in warehouses, recently launched by General L. C. Andrews, dry chief, and completed by Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran disclosed that an ample supply exists to meet the requirements of the country for an indefinite period.

"No emergency exists and no action will be taken on applications of a number of whisky producers for licenses to resume distilling," Lowman said.

COOLIDGE INSULAR PLAN CONSIDERED PRO AND CON

Secretary of Interior Hubert Work Visits with Executive at Game Lodge

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 9 — The suggestion of President Coolidge that all of this nation's insular possessions be coordinated under one federal agency was considered pro and con today at the summer White House.

Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work under whom Mr. Coolidge has suggested the ocean outposts be concentrated was the latest guest at the South Dakota game lodge, having arrived this morning and the proposal of a general insular bureau was gone over carefully.

The president expects trouble in selling the idea to congress this December that the Philippines, Hawaii and other island possessions be placed under a single directorship. Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, sponsor of the unsuccessful federal reorganization bill, already has expressed his opposition to the proposal, but Mr. Coolidge's mind is unchanged. He thinks that, despite the splendid work the army and navy have done in administering the islands, there should be a complete turnover and a strictly civilian government.

The recent death of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines, has brought the matter to a head, according to the president's closest advisors. An aggressive policy, unless any taint of the military is what is needed in the island. If the demand for autonomy is as is alleged, the executive feels.

Wilson, N. C., Aug. 9—Several hundred officers and civilians today were scouring a woods section near here for Eugene Mason, who early this morning is alleged to have shot and killed Joe Lilue, a policeman, and probably fatally wounded Luther Barnes, another officer.

BENDER AND JOHNSON FILE STATE PETITION

Columbus, Aug. 9 — State Senators George Bender, of Cleveland, and Nils P. Johnson, Youngstown, were enroute to their homes today after having filed petitions late Monday asking for a referendum vote on the Marshall Bill, which was to have gone into effect today. The bill was passed by the Ohio Legislature to allow Ohio justices of the peace and other minor officers to hear liquor cases, after the United States Supreme Court had outlawed the fee system of these courts.

BULLETIN

Chicago, Aug. 9—A powerful bomb, containing eight sticks of dynamite and with a time clock set to explode at 11:15 a. m. was discovered here today in a small building in the rear of sub post-office, the largest sub station in Chicago.

The bomb, large enough to have blasted an entire section of the postoffice, is the first actual trace in Chicago of violence in connection, it is believed, with the Sacco and Vanzetti execution.

Boston, Aug. 9—Two men, said by police to be "bombers" from New York, were under arrest this afternoon, police believing they had nipped in the bud a bomb plot on the life of Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, who handed down an adverse decision in the celebrated case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

At the time of the arrest two state detectives and a department of justice agent, were thrown to a point an hour and a half ride south of the city to locate a cache of explosives.

Upwards of 3,000 workers had begun a general strike in protest on the Sacco-Vanzetti execution, with police mobilized for any emergency.

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 9—In a 13-word sentence Judge Webster Thayer today denied a motion for a stay and revocation of sentence for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, doomed to die in the electric chair in state's prison for a double slaying.

The decision, handed down in Norfolk County Superior Court, read:

"The motion for revocation of sentence and stay of execution is hereby denied, Webster Thayer, justice of the superior court."

A copy of the decision, the brevity of which caused those concerned in the case much surprise was dispatched from the judge's Worcester home to the courthouse here by Deputy Sheriff Everett Caldwell.

Based on Prejudice

The motion denied today by Judge Thayer, was based upon alleged prejudice by him outside of the courtroom while the trial was under way, charges that he denied from the bench.

Accompanying the decision was a notation by Judge Thayer that all rights to which the defendants were entitled as a matter of law, whether by exception, appeal, or otherwise, had been saved by the defense.

It was not thought probable at the courthouse, however, that in view of the few remaining hours before the tentative time for the execution that any exception taken would have any bearing on the final outcome of the "last-ditch" attempt to save Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair through the Massachusetts courts.

POLICE REDOUBLE THEIR PRECAUTIONS

Boston, Aug. 9—Police redoubled their precautions today as the executioner was reported leaving Sing Sing Prison for this city to test the electric chair for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, as a general strike of Boston workers was called in last-minute protest; as trial Judge Webster Thayer's decision on a stay and revocation of sentence was enroute by messengers from his Worcester home to Dedham courthouse, and as defense lawyers held a council in preparation for a quick rush to the United States courts.

Riot squads from the 21 police stations were assembled at police headquarters, with three men in each squad manning machine guns capable of firing 1500 bullets a minute. The riot squad of 400 and more men was ready

COOLIDGE HASN'T RECEIVED APPEAL

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 9—President Coolidge has seen no appeal for clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti, condemned payroll bandits, which was reported to have been sent him by their defense committee, it was stated here today. If such an appeal comes, it will be sent to the department of justice.

The executive, it was stated has received appeals in the case from time to time during the past. Persons who sent them, however, are laboring under a misapprehension that the federal government has some jurisdiction. The whole question, it was stated, rests solely with the governor and the courts of Massachusetts.

Moscow Aug 9—Trotsky and Zinovieff have been expelled from the central committee of the Communist Party by an overwhelming vote of the plenum according to reliable reports today

No official statement has been issued on the vote as yet.

The final expulsion of Trotsky and Zinovieff from the central committee completes the stripping of power from these two men who were once high in the Communist councils

For more than a year Trotsky and Zinovieff have been leading the opposition to the present Communist policies and as their opposition has continued they have been deprived of office after office

When the plenum of the central committee went into session last week it was reported that Joseph Stalin had given warning that all those of the opposition who failed to give a pledge of allegiance to the party and its policies would be drastically dealt with Many deserted the opposition but Trotsky and Zinovieff held fast and now pay the penalty of expulsion

Five Teams in Little World Series This Season

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

LIMA and Marion are [illegible] in a number of sports and athletic events of Sunday [illegible] be used as an example [illegible] Marion athletic teams [illegible] the Allen County city to compete with Lima teams and one Lima [illegible] Marion.

And Lima got the [illegible] of the bargain. [illegible] of its [illegible] were successful while only [illegible] Marion [illegible] scored a victory.

The Marion Athletics [illegible] Lima baseball fans [illegible] then took the [illegible] of life by [illegible] ing the Independents on their own stamping grounds. The [illegible] tennis club took a trip to the [illegible] Creek Country Club courts at Lima and came home without the much heralded bacon. It won only three of 11 matches and tied one.

But where Lima seemed to [illegible] ly outclass Marion was in golf. The Marion Country Club golfers were unable to stem the onrushing tide from Allen County and were completely submerged.

While two out of three Lima teams were victors it is a great consolation to know that the Marion Athletics handed the highly touted Lima baseball aggregation a defeat.

A NEW epidemic is raging through athletic circles in Marion and Marion County this summer. It might fittingly be called protestitis being derived from that familiar term seen in these columns almost every day namely "protest."

It began in Marion recreational ball circles but has spread among the county teams now and may soon reach out among teams in surrounding counties.

The last two cases have been reported in the vicinity of Harpster where the Modern Woodmen's baseball aggregation is located. David C. Kale of Agosta, president of the league will act as head physician in the matter and we wish him all success in bringing about an early cure.

TOMMY ARMOUR has completed his golfing conquests on the North American continent. That young gentleman, who visited Marion a few weeks ago on an exhibition tour with Walter Hagen, is not only holder of the United States open golf championship, but is now also champion of the links in Canada.

He added the new crown to his collection Saturday when he beat MacDonald Smith by one stroke on the Toronto Golf Club course.

The old veteran of the World War and hero of the British tank corps just succeeded in heading off a brilliant rally by Smith last year's champion and captured the title with a score of 288 for the 72 holes. Smith had 289.

CUYAHOGA COUNTY horse racing fans today were watching with interest the experiment in betless racing which was to be inaugurated with the opening of the Grand Circuit meet at North Randall track this afternoon.

Sheriff Edward J. Hanratty announced early in the spring that no gambling of any sort would be permitted at race tracks in the county this season. As a result every meeting except the grand circuit program was cancelled.

H. K. Devereux, director of the track, has promised that he and other officials will do their utmost to prevent betting. Hanratty said he would put the meeting "on its honor" and send no deputies to North Randall until word reached him that gambling was being countenanced.

FIGHTING IT OUT

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are running away with the home run honors in the American League and have outdistanced the leaders in the National League, but old Cy Williams of the Phils, Rogers Hornsby of the Giants and Hack Wilson of the Cubs, are fighting it out for the honors in the latter circuit. Williams is leading the field. Large photo shows Rogers Hornsby, at left and Cy Williams. Inset is of Hack Wilson.

Red Sox In Winning Spurt; Cop Six Straight Contests

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—Aping the spectacular spurt of the Braves in 1914 the Boston Red Sox are burning up the American League these days. The surprising Sox have won six straight games and have copped 11 of their last 14 contests, a record unequalled by a Red Sox aggregation in many moons.

While the Braves in 1914 won the pennant their embattled fellowtownsmen can hardly finish higher than sixth this season. Today they are only 6½ games behind the Browns.

The Sox got only five hits off Stoner and Carroll of the Tigers yesterday but won 2 to 1 by taking advantage of Detroit errors. Ruffing held the Bengals to seven hits.

In the only other big league game played yesterday the Indians knocked Walter Johnson and beat the Senators 6 to 1. The Nats could do nothing with Joe Shaute.

The Senators have acquired outfielder Bill Lamar from the Athletics via the waiver route.

BILLY GILBERT, FORMER STAR OF GIANTS, DIES

New York, Aug. 9—New York baseball fans today mourned the passing of Billy Gilbert, old time star of the Giants. He died at his home here at the age of 52 years. Gilbert played second base for the Giants when they won a pennant in 1905. The others in that infield were McGraw, Devlin and Dahlen. At the time of his death Gilbert was a scout for the Newark club of the International League.

JACK DELANEY READY FOR PAOLINO MATCH

New York, Aug. 9—After a road workout today at his training camp in Meredith, N. H., Jack Delaney will entrain for this city where he meets Paolino Uzcudun in a 15-round bout on Thursday night. He will engage in a public workout here tomorrow.

Paolino will not complete his training at Summit, N. J., until the morning of the fight.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Buffalo — Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, won the decision over Benny Ross, of Buffalo, in 12 rounds.

At Troy, N. Y.—The scheduled 12 round bout between Eddie Dempsey, 149 pounds, of Philadelphia, and Harry Martone, 150 pounds, of Jersey City, was stopped by the referee in the eleventh round to save Dempsey from further punishment. Tommy Dorr, 174½ pounds, of Troy, knocked out Lester Osborn, 188 pounds, of Amsterdam, N. Y., in the fourth round.

COMMISSION TO SET DATES OF GAMES MONDAY

Winners of Each Sunday School League Eligible To Enter

FIVE teams, winners of each of the recreational ball leagues in Marion, will compete in the Little World Series this season.

This decision was reached last night during the meeting of the recreational ball commission. It met with [illegible] approval from [illegible] of the commission.

Date of the Little World Series will be set next Monday night when the commission will again meet and what will probably be its last session this year.

In previous years the leaders in each of the church leagues met in a game before the Little World Series to decide which team should enter the series. Only four teams would then participate. Under the new ruling the winners of each of the Sunday School leagues may enter. It is probable that the series will get under way Monday, Aug. 22, although no official announcement to that effect has yet been made. Double elimination will rule in the series.

Protests Fail

Teams presenting protests last night did not win a single case. The commission allowed no protests after considering closely matters in each case and receiving evidence from both sides.

Postoffice protested the eligibility of Gilbert Gilmore in playing on the K. of P. team last Friday night claiming that Gilmore was manager of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks in the Association. It was found upon investigation that Gilmore played with the K. of P.'s this season before the Association games got under way, thereby making himself eligible to play with the Commercial League team. He was however ineligible to any [illegible] of play in the Association according to the decision reached by the commission.

The protest of the Marion Stars to the effect that the Marion Steam Shovel Office game was played on a muddy and slippery field unfit for a game, was overruled on the grounds that the umpire-in-chief is supreme. It was the umpire-in-chief who decided the game should continue.

C. D. & M. Osgood Protest

The C. D. & M. protest against Osgood was lost for the same reason. C. D. & M. had protested against the "hurrying up" of the game and also declared Osgood used an illegal delivery. The commission having full confidence in the umpire in charge of that contest and hearing his side of the argument, failed to allow the protest.

The protest of the Marion Steam Shovel Office to the effect that Glen Price, centerfielder on the Eagles, had used hard shoes in the game last Friday night also was declared void.

The St. Mary's protest against Forest Lawn concerning the action taken by the umpire when a foul hit ball struck him was again considered by the commission and resulted in the same decision reached in the matter during the last session. St. Mary's was not allowed the protest.

The Forest Lawn protest against Wesley M. P. about the eligibility of Ralph Clark was dropped.

WOODMEN PROTEST GAMES AT CLARIDON

Harpster Team Loses Twin Bill, but Claims Batteries Illegal

Claridon trimmed the Modern Woodmen of Harpster in both games of a double header Sunday afternoon, winning 6 to 5 and 7 to 6, but W. C. Barber has filed a protest with David C. Kale of Agosta, president of the league, asking that the defeats be investigated before being credited against the Woodmen.

Barber claims that Claridon used two ineligible pitchers, Longshore of Meeker and Myer of Burvrus. According to Barber it is understood in the Tri-County league that the batteries of each team be named before it enters the league. The two names mentioned above are not in the battery list offered by Claridon at the first of the season.

If the games are credited as losses to the Modern Woodmen, the Marion Pirates are sitting on top of the league and going full blast with little hope of ever being overtaken. The Woodmen entered the league about three weeks ago. They have defeated the Pirates on one occasion.

"LITTLE SPITFIRE" IS WINNER IN ENGLAND

Southampton, England, Aug. 9—"Little Spitfire," the motor boat owned by Mrs. J. H. Rand, Jr., of New York and piloted by Ralph Snoddy, Los Angeles, today won the Duke of York gold trophy. "Little Spitfire" had a total of 12 points for the three days racing and the nearest rival competitor had but six points.

MANSFIELD DEFEATS ANTHONY CLEANERS, 1-0, WHEN SIEFERT SHINES FOR VISITING OUTFIT

"Jap" Brings in Winning Run and Saves Day for Mansfield in Seventh by Making Brilliant Catch of Parr's Long Fly; Takes Mansfield Player's Place in Field

MANY [illegible] things have happened [illegible] Marion recreational ball circles [illegible] but last night was [illegible] [illegible] of Marion's [illegible] players [illegible] [illegible] outfit.

[illegible] the story of Jap Siefert [illegible] last night who [illegible] for the Mansfield [illegible] against Anthony Cleaners [illegible] a Mansfield player. It was [illegible] Siefert [illegible] Schroeder of Mansfield [illegible] in the fourth inning [illegible] catch in right [illegible] Marion from [illegible] the count in the last of the [illegible].

The [illegible] was 1 to 0 with Mansfield [illegible].

Marion for Mansfield

However, due to the fact that the entire Mansfield outfield was made up of Marion players, Riddle, Tschannen and Siefert, the contest was declared [illegible] as far as the series in which the Cleaners and Journals are engaged is concerned. In other words the series count remains 1 and 1 and the game last night might be termed as an exhibition performance with Siefert doing the exhibiting.

Schultz and Hannen, regular Mansfield batteries, failed to appear on the scene so Schroeder and Beveridge acted as Mansfield batteries. Roy Rice pitched for Marion with Paul Rice on the receiving end. Schroeder, whose pitching was slightly illegal at times, allowed only three hits and Rice gave five. It was the first Mansfield game in which the Cleaners have participated during which [illegible] were [illegible]. Neither hurler struck out a single batter.

All For Jap

The [illegible] feature of the game was Siefert's brilliant catch in the [illegible] inning. With the [illegible] [illegible] against them [illegible] for the last time. Marion [illegible] thrown out at first and with [illegible] Frankie Parr slammed out a fly that looked like anything from a [illegible] to a home run. Siefert took one look at the sphere sailing [illegible] and began running for Mansfield. Then with Parr already around first and well on his way [illegible] second Jap turned, twisted and leaped into the air making a beautiful backhand catch of the speeding ball. Paul Rice was thrown out at first and it was all over.

Gimbel's playing at third for the victors was another feature of the battle. He had nine assists. Baldauf playing first for Anthonys, had 15 putouts in the seven innings.

Mansfield probably will appear here next Monday night with its regular outfit in the third game of the series.

Hubers Defeat Tap & Die; Erie Shops Trim Fairfield

STAGING the surprise of the Industrial league, the Huber recreational ball team last night trimmed the fast stepping Gardner Tap & Die outfit 6 to 5. In the meantime the Erie Roundhouse was defeating Fairfield 5 to 2 in order to keep the Industrial league standing about the same.

Hubers went wild against the highly touted Gardner Tap & Die hurler and scored four runs in the third inning putting the game on ice in that frame. Gardner Tap & Die made one in the second stanza and the annexed to tie the score in the last inning but fell three tallies short of its mark.

Gifford pitched for Huber and received excellent support. It was the third victory of the season for the Huber team and the fourth defeat of the year for Gardner Tap & Die. The latter team still holds a slight margin over the Erie Shops and is in second place.

Erie Shops Win

After trailing for four innings the Erie Shops suddenly came to life last night in the game with Fairfield and scored three runs in the fifth inning to win 5 to 2. Fairfield made its only [illegible] counters in the first frame.

Jones pitched for the Erie and [illegible] was on the mound for Fairfield.

sponse to the government's cotton report, further gains of 100 points were recorded as soon as the market opened today, making a total advance of 300 points, or $15 a bale. Prices are now above 20 cents a pound, against last week's quotations of 17 cents a pound and under.

Pound Still Gains

The British pound sterling also continued to move upward in the local market, cables being quoted at the new high record of $4.86 5-32. The rise in the British currency is the direct result of the late transfers of American money into the London market to take advantage of the higher rates prevailing there.

All of the industrial speculative leaders won back a good portion of yesterday's losses in the short-covering prices which carried General Motors back to 224, U. S. Steel to 133½; Dupont to 286; and Baldwin to 240. Bethlehem Steel advanced to above 61, the highest price since 1924, while new moves were inaugurated in American Linseed, Yellow Truck, Associated Dry Goods and Radio Corporation.

Cut Gasoline Price

Recognition of the chaotic state of the gasoline market was contained in the new move of Standard Oil Co. of N. Y. and the Sinclair Corporation, in reducing gasoline prices 2 cents a gallon to 17 cents tank wagon. The move was forced by the recent overflowing of the socalled "bootleg gas" at the principal points of distribution, where the fuel is available as low as 12 and 15 cents a gallon.

With stock transactions less than 1,000,000 shares up to the fourth hour, the contrast with last week's chaotic markets was quite pronounced. The whittling down of speculative activity had the natural effect of placing many of the active stocks on the shelf for the time being, and little trading was in evidence in the railroad shares, the copper, equipments, sugars, tobaccos and specialties. Only the motors and steel stocks basked in the speculative lime light, and no market moves of a sensational nature were recorded.

The grain markets were unable to continue their spectacular upward movements though the bulk of yesterday's new gains were retained. Stiffening tendencies were seen in the principal commodity markets. Call money was in good supply at 3½ per cent and time money was unchanged.

MEMORIAL NOT TO BE FINISHED NOV. 1, CLAIM

Foreman Says Slow Arrival of Marble in City Will Delay Work

That the Harding Memorial, being constructed by the F. Elford & Son Co. of Columbus, will not be completed until sometime next year, was intimated today by C. H. Freuninger, of this city, foreman in charge of the workmen at the tomb.

The original date for the completion of the structure of the memorial had been Nov. 1 of this year, according to Freuninger, but owing to the slow arrival of marble into this city, the work has been delayed to a great extent.

Marble for the structure is obtained from the Georgia Marble Co., of Nelson, Georgia. About 100 carloads of the stone will be necessary before the memorial is complete, Freuninger says. At the rate of the shipments recently there will not be enough marble here by Nov. 1 for the completion of the structure. About four carloads were received last week.

20 Men at Work

A force of 20 men including marble fitters, brick layers and laborers are now at work at the tomb. The force is sufficient to handle all of the marble that has been arriving in the city, according to Freuninger.

Following the construction of the memorial the work on the landscape will be started, plans for the memorial reveal. The landscape work will be in charge of the Taylor Landscape Architect Co., of Cleveland.

All work will be suspended on the tomb when the weather becomes bad but will be renewed in the spring, Freuninger announced today.

REPORTS CAR STOLEN

Walter McMurray, employed at the plant of the Commercial Steel Castings Co., reported to the police yesterday afternoon that his Ford touring car had been stolen from the plant earlier in the afternoon. The missing car carried Ohio license No. 705-165.

Thousands Line Streets as Wood's Body is Borne to Grave

BODY IS TAKEN BACK TO SCENE OF TRIUMPHS

Military Escort of Almost 1,000 Men Is Headed by Army Band

Washington, Aug 9—Back to the scene of his greatest triumphs was borne today the body of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, for a final resting place in Arlington National Cemetery among the nation's warrior dead.

It was in Washington that Wood once an obscure surgeon in the army rose to chief of staff the highest post in the military establishment.

The funeral which honored his 42 years' service as soldier and colonial administrator was one of the most impressive military ceremonials here in recent years. Despite overcast skies thousands of Washingtonians paid silent tribute along the 15-mile processional route between Union station plaza and the burial ground. Ranking general of the army officiated as pallbearers. Public officials of every rank participated in the ceremony. Flags were flown at half staff on all public buildings.

Taken to President's Room

General Wood's body arrived at 7:25 o'clock this morning from Boston, where he died early Sunday morning following a cranial operation. He was 67 years old and had returned from the Philippine Islands three months ago on his first leave of absence since he assumed the governor generalship under President Harding in 1921. Mrs. Wood and a guard of honor composed of six troopers accompanied the bier from Boston.

Upon its arrival the general's body borne by six soldiers, was carried slowly behind two ranks of troops from the train to the president's room in the station there to lie in state for a brief time while the funeral cortege formed outside. The casket, draped by an American flag, was not opened. The funeral escort was ordered to move at 9 o'clock for the last, slow march to the cemetery. Wood's grave is among his comrades of the "Rough Riders" regiment.

Mrs. Wood, her two sons, Osborne Wood and Leonard Wood, Jr., and her daughter, Miss Louise B. Wood, sat for a short time by the casket in the president's room. None but military officers and relatives was allowed to enter with them. Mrs. Wood appeared pale and worn, but bore up well.

Going to Baltimore

After the funeral Mrs. Wood plans to go to Baltimore for a rest.

Rain began to fall as the procession left the station.

The military escort of almost a thousand men including units from Fort Myer and Fort Humphreys, Virginia, was headed by the army band and commanded by Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the Army War College. Behind the flag draped caisson, a riderless horse with saddle turned backwards—the traditional emblem of military mourning—moved in the slow cortege.

The procession moved from the station plaza to the capitol grounds, west on Pennsylvania av. to the Washington monument grounds, past the White House and the great marble shaft of the first division monument in the rear of the state department, and thence over the Potomac to the cemetery.

Widely Famed Soldier

Col. John T. Axton, chief of chaplains of the army, and Chaplain W. H. Watts were appointed to officiate at the burial ground.

General Wood once chief of staff and for years the ranking general of the United States Army, was one of the most widely famed soldiers of recent times. Colonel of the celebrated "Rough Riders," in which Theodore Roosevelt won distinction in the Spanish American War, and always an intimate friend of the former president who had been his lieutenant colonel, Wood rose in the short span of 15 years to the top rank of the army.

Disappointed that he was not given a command in France, but always a good soldier, he served during the World War in training camps at home, preparing thousands for service in the A. E. F. he once had aspired to lead.

His primary campaign for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920 made him a dominating factor in that historic Chicago convention which named President Harding after a deadlock. Soon after the inauguration in 1921 President Harding appointed Wood governor general of the Philippine Islands.

LINDY SETS TONGUES GOING, TALKS TO GIRL

Shows Aviatrix Controls of Plane, Invites Her Into "Spirit"

Cincinnati, Aug 9—The wagging of tongues which starts anew every time the Prince of Wales invites a young woman to dance or dine or ride on his yacht was but a dim echo today compared with the gossip started by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, bashful transatlantic flying hero in the wake of the invitation to a pretty girl to sit in the cockpit of the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The honored guest, who sat in the control seat of the famous monoplane was Miss Martha Helen Croninger, 17, said to be the only woman aviator in Cincinnati. She isn't really a full fledged pilot yet, but is a student aviator and already has done some solo piloting. She was introduced to Lindbergh at Lunken Airport just prior to his take off for Louisville, Ky., yesterday, and Lindy surprised even his closest associates when he invited her to inspect the controls of his ship from the pilot's place.

Lindbergh's take-off was slightly delayed when it was discovered that a souvenir hunter had whittled a four inch square section from the stabilizer of the "Spirit of St. Louis," but repairs were made quickly.

FLY-TOX

Your Doctor Will Confirm This

The fly's mouth and tongue are covered with fine hairs. Consequently some of the filth in which they nest clings to them. And the microscope discloses those tiny drops of unspeakable uncleanliness alive with bacteria—disease germs.

A fly may infect anything it touches. Milk, food, baby's eyes, open wounds are favorite sources of infection.

But with Fly-Tox a house can be kept free of flies and similar insects. Fly-Tox is fragrant, stainless. Fly-Tox is harmless to human but sure death to flies, mosquitoes and similar disease carrying insects.—Adv.

Babies Teach Mothers In This Unusual School

CLASS IN SAN FRANCISCO'S "MOTHERS' KINDERGARTEN" WHERE CHILD PSYCHOLOGY IS TAUGHT TO PARENTS WHO NEVER HEARD OF SUCH A THING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 9

Time is in the process of turning backwards for certain mothers in this city. They are being made children again, and enjoying the metamorphosis. These grown women are being taught by their eager and youthful children.

The nursery school plan which has been tried effectively in a number of eastern cities has been started in the Phoebe A. Hearst Kindergarten, the first of its kind in San Francisco and the bay region. The purpose is to guide children in the formation of the right kind of life habits.

The school is dedicated to the application of the most recent scientific conclusions in the field of child psychology.

One of these, according to Miss Helen M. Christensen, expert in the training of children, who has come from New York to conduct the school, is that "temper tantrums", with which most parents are familiar, are devastating in their effect on the youngster giving way to them, and that they may be prevented by the right kind of training. This training is given to the mothers attending the classes. The children are the models.

The school at present has 24 little children in its care, boys and girls between two and four years, recruited from the immediate neighborhood. It takes charge of the youngster at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and keeps it occupied until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Every minute of the child's activities between these hours is planned from the playing with toys to the midday nap and the two meals a day, prepared according to strict scientific rules of diet.

"Many parents," says Miss Christenson, "are without the knowledge that has been developed through modern child psychology which would enable them to guide the child correctly.

"The nursery school idea is to tention not only to the child's mental side, but to the emotional, nutritional, health, social and motor skill development. In short, it seeks to start the child off right so that he may become the proper sort of all-round developed social animal.

"The nursery school idea is to keep as far away as possible from the 'don't' habit, but to encourage the child to develop its natural instincts and abilities in such ways that it is not aware that it is being guided or supervised."

WHAT is the quality that so many of those whose voices are precious have found that makes LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes delightful and of no possible injury to those voices?

For the answer, a number of physicians, many of them leading physicians, in various parts of the United States were recently asked these two questions:

Q 1—In your judgment is the heat treatment or toasting process applied to tobaccos previously aged and cured, likely to free the cigarette from irritation to the throat?

9651 doctors answered this question "YES".

Q 2—Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105 doctors answered this question "YES".

Consider what these figures mean; consider that they represent the opinion and experience of doctors, those whose business it is to know.

Joseph Caillaux, Noted French Orator, writes:

"I have found your Lucky Strike Cigarettes very agreeable. They do not hurt my throat in the least and are very soothing to my voice."

All fears that the little fellow found on sweet corn is the dread borer were removed today by statements coming from officials identi fied with the corn borer eradica t n campaign in Marion County

Same Little Worm

The sweet corn worm is not the borer nor even a distant relative the authorities say It is the same annoying though harmless visitor which has been in evidence during every sweet corn season for many years probably more numer ous in some years than others but nevertheless always present.

There is little resemblance between the ear worm and the much discussed borer authorities say The ear worm is much larger than the borer which is less than an inch in length at this time of the year

The fact of the matter is officials say that there is little if any likelihood of borers having found their way into any of the sweet corn in Marion county or surrounding territory The infestation in this locality is exceedingly light and eradication measures employed by state and federal officials have prevented an increase during the last year

So if a worm is found in a roasting ear bought on the local market the purchaser can take for granted that it is one of the old standbys the hungry ear worm which does comparatively little damage

No Danger Claim

Buy sweet corn and eat it to your heart's content the same as you have in the past is the message of good cheer coming from the government experts There is absolutely no danger of coming into contact with a corn borer they say and only the usual amount of care is required to guard against the old fashioned ear worm

Give the roasting ear the once over before easing it into the kettle is the only precautionary measure necessary If any part of the ear has been damaged by a worm cut off the damaged part and prepare the balance for the dinner table

Thus have the corn experts removed all obstacles to staging a corn eating carnival which should equal if not surpass any similar event in the history of Marion County

REFERENDUM ON MARSHALL LAW FAVORED HERE

3,000 Local Citizens Sign Petition Seeking Vote on Measure

Marion County residents are strongly in favor of putting a [illegible] to [illegible] operations in [illegible] and justices of the peace throughout Ohio.

This is [illegible] by results [illegible] here in circulation of petitions asking for a referendum on the Marshall law, the statute which it is said will enable courts to continue their objectionable activities.

Approximately 70 petitions bearing at least 1000 signatures of [illegible] were filed with the secretary of state as a part of the referendum movement. It was stated today. Work of circulating the petitions was completed here last week by several men representing the state organization which is sponsoring the referendum. The work here was in charge of [illegible] former [illegible].

It was announced at Columbus yesterday that petitions filed bore a sufficient number of signatures to prevent the Marshall act from becoming effective today, which was the date set when the bill was adopted by the legislature. Enforcement of the act will now be held up until the voters make their decision on the referendum in November.

Marion County [illegible] representatives stated went far above its quota with its 3,000 signers. Most of the signatures were obtained in the city of Marion, the petitions having had comparatively small circulation in the villages and rural districts.

Action on Workhouse Plans Scheduled to Take Place at Council Meet Wednesday

Adjourned Session Called To Consider Proposition of Building Institution Here To Care for Prisoners; Proposal Outlined to Municipal Legislators

Action on the proposal to establish a workhouse in Marion is scheduled to take place at an adjourned session of the city council Wednesday night.

The workhouse project was outlined to council at its regular semi-monthly session last night and the members decided to discuss the question in caucus before taking action. Although no definite information was available today it was indicated today that council favors establishing a workhouse here and will agree to co-operate with the county in seeking to devise ways and means for the financing.

Approved by County

The matter was presented to council by City Solicitor George T. Geran who stated that he had taken it up in a discussion with the county commissioners yesterday and found that the county board proposed to establish a workhouse if plans can be worked out satisfactorily.

He informed the county board that he would talk with council for the purpose of ascertaining views of the members.

The project has not advanced beyond the stage of preliminary discussion and the only thing asked of council at this time is an expression of sentiment, the solicitor said. If the members express a willingness to join in the plans for the purpose of seeing whether something definite can be accomplished the commissioners will proceed with their negotiations, the solicitor stated.

Considered Several Years

In his statement the solicitor said that a workhouse for Marion has been under discussion at different times for several years, the matter having been considered during his former term as solicitor.

Not until this time, however, has the matter ever been given serious consideration, officials say. Possibility of something actually being done is stronger now than at any time in the past. This is due to the emergency which has developed as a consequence of a notice recently received from the Dayton workhouse stating that no prisoners will be admitted there in the future from points outside Montgomery County.

This creates necessity of action, the officials here as both city and county have been sending prisoners to Dayton.

GIRL CAMPERS GUESTS AT ROTARY CLUB PICNIC

Annual Outing of Reorganization is Held at Camp Robert Uhler

Thirty-eight girls and five camp leaders who are spending 10 days at Camp Robert Uhler, the Y. W. C. A. camp at [illegible], were guests of the Rotary Club at their annual picnic held at the camp yesterday afternoon.

Approximately [illegible], including the Rotarians, their children and guests, were served at the steak dinner which was a feature of the affair. A huge grill had been installed in an open space at the camp upon which the steaks were prepared under the supervision of Charles Curtis, while a large kettle which hung suspended over another fire supplied green corn which was also a feature of the menu.

Because of the fact that most of the club members were unable to leave the city until late in the afternoon, no attempt at an elaborate program of games and contests was made by those in charge. Bathing, fishing, boating and canoeing in the lake, which is a new feature of the camp this year, was enjoyed by the children of Rotarians and the camp girls.

Inspections Under Way

Meanwhile Department of Commerce inspectors continued their examination not only of the planes but also of the flying ability of the pilots and navigators. Examination of the mechanical equipment centers upon the following details:

A margin of gasoline 15 per cent above probable requirements, adequate equipment and in good order and ability of the ship to carry its gross load.

The pilots and navigators are tested upon their ability to steer and chart a true course over a test flight of from 100 to 200 miles.

Yes, Officials Vote

In two of the precincts, C of the second ward and C of the sixth, the only votes cast up to noon were those of the precinct officials.

In fact investigation showed that more than half of the 113 ballots cast in the 12 precincts came from the board members on duty to receive and count the votes. There are six officials at each voting place.

A list of the 12 precincts and the number of votes cast in each at noon follows:

First Ward: precinct A, county surveyor's office, 31 votes, B, Slamer Lumber Co. office, 10, E, Mark st fire department, 11.

SCORE OF OHIO CITIES VOTING

Columbus, Aug. 9—Primary municipal elections involving strictly local issues of the communities in which they were being held occupied the attention of voters in a score or more of Ohio cities, towns and villages today. There were no statewide issues at stake, and a quiet election day with a light vote being cast was forecast throughout the state.

In Columbus candidates of the two major parties for seats on the city council were being selected together with judges of the municipal court.

Toledo was choosing candidates for mayor with three nominees to be chosen from a field of four.

Comeback Attempted

In Canton, a touch of interest was added by the attempt of C. C. Curtis, ex-mayor who was ousted by Governor Donahey, to stage a political comeback. He is one of five seeking nomination by the Republicans while Mayor S. M. Swartz is opposed by J. B. Parker for the Democratic honor.

Policemen were guarding the polls in Steubenville where Dr. E. J. C. Sander, reform mayor who took office after John Patton was ousted last year, was opposed by a field of four, including Patton, also attempting to regain his political prestige by reelection. Claims of alleged false registration resulted in the stationing of officers at the polls to enforce the election regulations.

Akron, Mansfield, Newark, Tiffin, Lorain, Marion and Alliance were among the other cities holding primaries today.

to continue the present overhead of the body.

This, however, left the matter in such a condition that Mr. Knapp declared positively that he would accept no salary after Sept. 1, and urged an affirmative vote upon a motion to accept his resignation as active director of the chamber without remuneration until the end of the fiscal year, Nov. 1, next. This motion was carried unanimously after two hours of persuasive effort failed to induce Mr. Knapp to defer action until ways and means might be [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] will be continued until the [illegible] [illegible] at which time [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Knapp was unwilling [illegible] his [illegible] he be relieved [illegible] duties as managing director he assured the board that he was entirely willing to do [illegible] for the welfare of Marion and the chamber [illegible] until his term as president expires and thereafter to render every possible aid in an [illegible] capacity [illegible] the chamber [illegible] to retire as a salaried manager.

The election of Mr. Knapp as president at [illegible] as active director of the chamber was [illegible] 15 months ago after a committee composed of [illegible] King [illegible] Prendergast and Edward K. Tyler was selected to [illegible] him into the position. At that time he refused to accept and reconsidered only after a number of leading business men, following a conference, urged him to launch a three-year program. The budget that was established at that time required $15,000 per year for its operation as compared with the annual receipts of approximately $10,000 in previous years. The [illegible] was made up in increased membership dues from downtown business firms and manufacturers but individual memberships, formerly kept alive through high pressure promotion efforts, lagged and faded away to the point where the gross revenues from membership pledges have never reached the $10,000 mark.

Senses Difficulties

Sensing the difficulties of keeping up an active interest on the part of those who are not in close touch with the activities of the chamber personnel, Mr. Knapp declared he was unwilling to enter a siege of chamber of commerce promotion, that it was his conviction the funds could not be provided under the present plan and that he positively would not continue at the head of an institution that faced insolvency within 90 days.

Although the meeting adjourned with no definite program outlined for the future it was intimated that efforts will be made to so rejuvenate the organization that Mr. Knapp might be prevailed upon to accept reelection, which, however he was not willing to consider. He suggested that Miss Marie Kelly, executive secretary, be left in active charge with the support of the board of directors but Miss Kelly refused to consider such a plan.

states "recommends filling up the lake bed and doing away with the lake if no better control can be exercised over it than in the past."

"Health Menace"

"I cannot help but think that it has been a menace to health and there seems to be no way to keep it from being a dumping place for rubbish and other filth" the commission chairman stated, adding that it is his personal opinion that the lake should be drained of water and filled.

He said that filling the bed and providing tiling and drainage would create an expense which the commission is not in position to bear. This money, he said, should be supplied by council.

The petition signed by the 40 property owners expressed views in line with those outlined in the Rapp letter.

Kerr in his letter of protest denies that the lake is unhealthful and declares that no garbage has been dumped there. He said that bait cans have been thrown into the water by boys fishing at the lake but that the place has never been used extensively as a rubbish receptacle.

Urges Consideration

Installing and maintaining sunken gardens would be much more costly than cleaning the lake and maintaining it properly, Kerr said. He said that city officials should first give careful consideration to eliminating objectionable conditions at the lake and to maintain it properly.

In the meantime the lake, which was accidentally drained last week when an outlet valve failed to function while repairs were being made, has only a few inches of water covering its bed, exposing to view a varied assortment of tin cans and an area of black mud.

Officials indicate that the reservoir may not be filled with water again until the park commission decides upon plans for the future.

[illegible] instant call to all the 2,000 police [illegible] engaged in 24 hour duty at the [illegible] stations.

[illegible] Roxbury district [illegible] posted [illegible] calling [illegible] general strike [illegible] the execution of [illegible] [illegible] Wal[illegible] [illegible]

Telegrams requesting [illegible] sent by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee to United States Sen. William E. Borah, United States Sen. Robert M. LaFollette and Miss Jane Addams to hasten to President Coolidge's [illegible] [illegible] to wait as a delegation on the chief executive [illegible] to lay before him evidence in the department of justice files of the federal government's alleged connection with the case as well as to urge him [illegible] President Wilson [illegible] in the Mooney case in making a federal inquiry.

Appeal to Lindbergh

The defense committee also telegraphed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh asking him to appeal to the president to appoint a commission of inquiry. European goodwill created by the transatlantic flier was being destroyed by the pending execution of Sacco and Vanzetti wired the committee, appealing to the humanitarian ideals of Lindbergh's father.

Washington st tunnel was searched for a man carrying a bundle. He had fled when observed trying to enter the Kiosk at State st.

Western Massachusetts police were searching for the owner of 45 pounds of dynamite found hidden in a culvert near the Pittsfield home of Justice Crosby of the state supreme court which body decided against a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Call in Red Type

Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill and his six legal aids were prepared to appeal to the federal district court or the United States Supreme Court when all avenues are exhausted in the state courts.

Gov. Alvan T. Fuller's decision on another respite for Sacco and Vanzetti is withheld pending court proceedings and may not be made until the eve of the executions.

The general strike call was on white paper with red type and was signed Sacco-Vanzetti strike committee. It read: "Strike for freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti. The last day strike begins at noon Tuesday. Only the workers' protest can save us. Come to the following halls and be assigned for picket duty." A list of halls used by various unions was printed. All police stations where police are on 24 hour duty, were notified.

Appeal to Borah

The defense committee appealed to Senator Borah as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. The message stated that "Sacco and Vanzetti have become international symbols of American justice, and good will toward the United States will be profoundly impaired in Europe and America if these men are executed while the United States government has evidence in its possession bearing on their innocence. We are appealing to you as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee as well as to William E. Borah, humanitarian. We believe a federal investigation opening the department of justice files will bring the two radicals their freedom."

The telegrams to Senator Borah, Senator LaFollette and Miss Addams then went on to explain that Sacco and Vanzetti had been sought because it was alleged they belonged to the Galleani group of anarchists, Vanzetti being a contributor to Cronaca Sovversiva the [illegible] [illegible] of publi[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] telegram [illegible]

Confers on Prejudice

"It [illegible] Judge Thayer at Dedham [illegible] alleged prejudice against [illegible] [illegible] Fuller [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

From the bench in superior court at Dedham where he heard motions for a new trial and a revocation and stay of execution Judge Thayer [illegible] seven years to defend himself publicly from the charges of prejudice and unfairness. It was the first opportunity he had to speak, he said, as the only way a judge can speak publicly is from the bench. "I have always insisted that every defendant, whatever his race or religion, whether he was a conservative or radical, native born or alien, is always entitled to a fair trial," he said.

With reference to the question of prejudice he said: "There is not now and never was at any time."

Developments Fast

After denying the new trial motion he noted exceptions but said he was saving all the rights both of appeal and exceptions belonging to the defense. If the court has no jurisdiction the exceptions will be of no avail. Judge Thayer consulted precedent at length while writing his decision during the night.

While the judge's decision was being given out at Dedham and while developments were coming thick and fast elsewhere police were establishing a deadline about state's prison at Charlestown and Sacco was entering the 21st day of his hunger strike. Vanzetti too has not eaten for over a week. Both men were silent and morose as they sat in their cells in the death house—all hope gone.

The elaborate police precautions at the prison were taken to head off a proposed "death march" at the prison gates before, during and after the electrocution by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers from all parts of the country all wearing mourning bands on their arms. All roads leading to the prison will be cleared of traffic, guards will be placed at bridges and railroad yards nearby and newspapermen and telegraphers will have to show credentials.

Fuller Estate Patrolled

Twenty-two armed state troopers patrolled the summer estate of Governor Fuller at Rye Beach, N. H., the guard having been increased because of the heavy fog hanging low along the coastline today. Pilgrim Hall and other historical buildings at Plymouth, landing place of the Pilgrims and home of Vanzetti, were under police guard. Extra precautions were taken to guard the mails, all postal employes in the various postal stations being armed while armed uniformed policemen stood guard outside the government buildings. Flood lights were used by the guards at the Fuller home during the night.

Three "sharpshooters," expert shotgun men from each police station were assembled at police headquarters. The gathering of the 15 "dead shots" was shrouded in mystery but followed the discovery of the general strike circular in Roxbury.

Expect 500,000 Workers To Quit Work as Protest

New York, Aug. 9—At least 500,000 workers were expected to lay down their tools here today in protest against the impending execution of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts.

Leaders called upon the workers to quit at 10 o'clock and proceed to 30 mass meetings. If the plans carry, leaders declare this will be the greatest demonstration of protest ever staged in New York.

At the hour appointed for the general walkout there was no apparent interruption of industrial activity. Only police and uncertain groups of stragglers appeared at the various designated meeting places. It could not be determined whether the groups were strikers or curious spectators.

The climax of the day is expected to be reached at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when a huge demonstration will be held at Union Square. There assembled the workers will be addressed by speakers and exorted to appeal against the execution of their two comrades.

Although the meetings have been permitted by police, extraordinary precautions will be taken to assure order and to prevent blocking of traffic by parades. At the Union Square meeting approximately 1,000 police will maintain order.

According to the leaders of the socialist and communist parties and the industrial workers of the world, the strike will be one of sympathy only, hence there will be no picket lines or other manifestations of a labor disturbance.

Trail Subway Suspect, Believed in New York

New York, Aug. 9—Three detectives left police headquarters today on the trail of a suspect in the subway bomb outrages upon advices from Boston, it is believed.

Failure of a known Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizer, whose automobile was seen speeding from the scene of one of the blasts, to appear at his home in Boston, led to the belief that he is hiding in New York.

Detective Christopher Kelley traced the identity of the man through the Massachusetts license plates on his automobile and was sent to Boston to watch for the suspect at his home. Meanwhile Boston police toured the city, visiting homes of sympathizers with the Sacco-Vanzetti case in a futile search for the man whose car had been seen in New York.

Witnesses who obtained the license numbers say the machine, an expensive sedan, darted away at high speed from Twenty-Eighth st. and Fourth av. immediately after the explosion Friday night.

The only information Police Commissioner Joseph A. Warren would offer regarding the New York phase of bombers' hunt was that the investigation is proceeding along four lines. He refused to enlarge upon this statement.

Meantime the police department continued on duty in full strength with 14,000 men. Private guards and special police also remained at their posts. In addition to these protective measures, more than 1,000 extra guards have been notified to be ready for instant duty.

Guards were dispatched to several points in the city where it was thought greater vigilance was needed.

Two men were seen [illegible] from the cloakroom just prior to the explosion, making their exit to the street by the stairs rather than by the [illegible] which are [illegible] used.

The Aldwych Station is probably one of the least used underground stations in London [illegible] on a [illegible] [illegible] connecting [illegible] [illegible] Strand, also [illegible] opposite Bush House, the huge American office building, and is near Australia House and the Air Ministry. A [illegible] from the Strand to the Aldwych Station and if the bombing was intended as a serious attack it may have been the plan of the perpetrators to blow up this tunnel which would have tied up traffic on the Strand and Kingsway, two of the most important traffic outlets from the city of London.

An eye witness, who was in the cloakroom lobby at the time of the explosion and who was not injured, said that probably the bomb was thrown into the cloakroom through an open window of a small passageway at the side of the station. "There was a loud flash followed by dense smoke and fumes," said this eye witness. "I rushed to the surface and told the police who immediately surrounded the station and excluded the public and made a complete investigation of the whole station."

New Pay Phone System.

The installation by the Ohio Associated Telephone company of pay instruments in a number of local business places in which telephones are of easy access to the public—an action contemplated by the Marion County Telephone company some time before it disposed of its plant to the present company, but never carried into execution—is a most excellent one.

To many familiar with the abuses to which the old company and its patrons were subjected for years, it was long a source of wonder that such an imposition was permitted. When a telephone company installs an instrument in a business place, it is done with the understanding that the phone is to be used by those in the place of business in which it is installed and their patrons and is in no case for the use of the general public. The imposition on the telephone company is not now so great as it was under the manual system, but even under the present dial system it works to tie up lines at times. The imposition upon the business man, however, is direct. He installs a phone for his own convenience and the convenience of those who wish to do business with him, yet some young man or young woman, and very probably a fair proportion of men and women of all ages, make use of the phone for ten or fifteen minutes at a time and talk of matters absolutely foreign to the phone renter's business, or any other business at times, barring the use of the phone to those desiring to use it in connection with some business matter in which the phone renter was interested. Very often such use of the phone causes a prospective customer of the phone renter to tire of waiting for a connection, with the result that the customer calls up and does business with a competitor of the man who paid for the use of the phone.

The telephone company is under no obligation whatever to give service to a non-subscriber and there is absolutely no reason why it should. Of course, in emergency cases—cases of death, sickness, fire and such cases—any telephone company is glad to render service over phones upon which a fixed charge is made by the month, but it can not be expected to render service to the general public under ordinary conditions free of charge. And it is an imposition on the business or professional man for non-subscribers to make use of his phone for extended periods on matters in which he has no interest, especially when such usage may result to his detriment in loss of business.

Under the new system imposition will no longer be worked on either the company or its patrons where pay phones are installed. The charge, though a small one, will result in a material lessening of the demand upon the lines and work toward far better service to those legitimately entitled to it.

Action or Reaction.

A recent survey conducted by one of the largest financial institutions in Ohio showed Marion to be in better shape than most of the cities of the state. Merchants, professional men, builders, contractors and other business lines are well pleased with the condition of affairs here, while there is a more-or-less recognized slump in things generally throughout the country.

A very large share of the credit for this local situation is due to intelligent and persistent efforts of the chamber of commerce, which means, as all the directors will agree, that George B. Knapp has gotten results in his eighteen months of work as active head of that organization.

It is small appreciation of real achievement and short-sighted business wisdom to permit him to consider retiring from the job because membership pledges are not being paid. It should be the danger signal for men who are sincerely interested in the development of Marion and of their own business interests in Marion. If they sit idly by and let matters take their course it will have failed as an alarm. If they become aroused to an understanding of the absolute necessity for active participation in all civic affairs, then it may have served a purpose well.

Mr. Knapp's aversion to the old-fashioned ballyhoo type of chamber of commerce, the lack of constant peddling of promotion bunk and a tendency to keep the basket over the candle have resulted in apathy, on the part of individual members who have not known definitely enough of the progress that has been made.

This newspaper regrets most deeply that such an impasse should be reached, but has confidence that the active business interests of Marion will not permit ground that has been gained to be sacrificed through indifference to a situation that ought to bring quick action.

The French Musicians' union wants the American college jazz players, who were permitted to enter France as tourists and are now playing at leading hotels while French musicians are jobless, either forbidden to play for hire or sent out of the country. We note that state officials expect to raise $18,000,000 by the three-cent gasoline tax. If their estimate is approximately correct, it means that Ohio motorists expend $144,000,000 for gas. It certainly takes money to make the mechanical mare go.

The women and girls do all the work in the fields and in the house, fight battles with neighboring tribes if attacked and keep the men and boys in luxury, it being held a disgrace to permit men and boys to work. If this gets noised about there's liable to be an exodus from this country.

We were told a day or two ago that there is no more drinking up in Ontario since it went wet than there was before, but for some reason the announcement was made at the joint meeting of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada and the National Glass Manufacturers' association in Atlantic City, last week, that the transition from dry to wet up there would necessitate an increase in beverage bottle production of 2,000,000 gross annually.

The Washington Post bemoans the fact that the laws "assuming to restrict weapon carrying" are not enforced. And it's everlastingly right about it. It's an outrage on the bandits, hold-up men and other elements of the criminal world who rely upon such laws to safeguard them to run up against honest, decent, respectable people armed to defend themselves.

A celebrated British medical authority, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, says that the mummies in the British museum show that the people of their times suffered from rheumatism, gout, tuberculosis, pneumonia and pyorrhea, from which we adduce that the ancients didn't realize the curative powers of spinach and other stuff like that now recognized as health builders.

TEA TIME IN JAPAN.

Green Buddha smiles serenely at the cherry-blossom tree
And all the silent glory of the fields of fleur-de-lis;
The waters of the river are half-drowsy with the heat,
And sands along the river bank grow hot beneath our feet.

Ah, here's the little tea-house almost hidden by the trees!
Take off your shoes and squat you down and breathe the cooling breeze,
Yes; tea for three!—Wee Yama Sim wants everything, you know,
And really it is best for us that she should have it so,
For three years old is enough to learn to drink good tea.
And if she doesn't want it, there'll be more for you and me!

Just Like Weedy Gardens.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are plenty of good folks who think it is unwise to write and talk about health. They take the position that a kindly nature will watch over the poor working girl and others, guarding them from all harm.

Unfortunately, this is not the case. You know perfectly well that a garden left to itself would be choked out by weeds.

Of course, it does no good to talk to the garden. In order to make it thrive somebody must cultivate it.

The object of talking and preaching and writing health is to point out the dangers of neglecting to do those simple things which will keep the body in health and vigor. When you know that the germs of disease may wipe out your life, as the weeds kill the garden, then you will get busy and cultivate health.

Some mothers have heard so much about germs that they are scared half to death for fear their children will be the victims of germ invasion. I don't want you to be scared. It isn't good for you or your baby to suffer from fear. I am just as much against fear as the Christian Scientists are.

But I do want to know enough about germs so that you will know how to guard your baby against them, by the exercise of a few simple precautions.

Accept the fact that you can not avoid germs. They are here to stay. Fortunately, some germs are good germs. They do desirable things. But the bad germs must be located and destroyed.

Cleanliness is the one and only rule you need to follow if you would snap your fingers at germs. Cleanliness makes it impossible for germs to live and multiply.

But when I speak of "cleanliness," I do not mean the same thing you do, perhaps. I refer to surgical or medical cleanliness.

A knife blade may be bright and shiny, the steel may be perfectly clean to gaze upon, but the point of that knife may carry a load of dangerous germs. You see, the appearance of cleanliness is not enough.

To get surgical cleanliness, the utensil must be boiled. Heat is real destroyer of germs. You can not get safety except by extreme care in this matter. Please bear in mind that there is a vast difference between the looks of a thing and its scientific cleanliness.

A baby may have "thrush" as a result of failure to cleanse the feeding utensils and to prepare the feedings in a scientific manner.

This is a disease of the mucous membrane lining of the mouth. Patches or flakes, white in color, not unlike curds of milk, are found on the tongue, lips or inside of the cheeks.

If these patches are rubbed off, bleeding points will be found beneath them. There are dryness of the mouth and a sensation of heat.

I have spoken of this disease, because it is one due to lack of cleanliness. Thrush and other infections can be avoided by proper care of the food and the containers of the food.

Editorial Comment.

TWO FAMILIES OF CALAMITIES.

If the amateur statisticians who specialize in useless figures were to lay end to end the newspaper clippings devoted this year to the description of earthquakes, floods and volcanic eruptions they would disclose an impressive total. It is probable that no year since newspapers have been published has been so frequently afflicted. The Chinese earthquake of May, recorded immediately by the observatories but lost from the news for a month, turns out to have been probably the most violent shake in human history. It was preceded and has been followed by a whole family of other violent shocks. Two volcanic eruptions are now in progress on opposite sides of the earth, one at Vesuvius, the other at Hawaii. Not for centuries have the convulsions of the weather been so severe as this year. Storms have flailed Europe again and again. In this country we have had tornadoes, cloudbursts and the Mississippi flood.

It is impossible to believe all these catastrophes due to mere chance. The arm of coincidence is not so long as that. Viewing the events of the last seven months one has an object lesson in the origin of superstition. Even modern men could be forgiven if they came to believe some malign influence at large in the world. Science, however, remains undaunted in its skepticism. Its answer is that "misfortunes seldom come singly, not by any malignity of fate but merely because certain kinds of misfortunes, for purely natural and understandable reasons, tend to come in groups."

The storms of this year are already well known to newspaper readers as probable effects of the same cause, the periodic disturbance of the sun. Although the reasons are more obscure, it can not be doubted that there is a similar periodicity about earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. There are "earthquake" years just as there are stormy years. Perhaps the reason for this lies in the idea of Professor E. W. Brown that the diameter of the earth shrinks and swells alternately from time to time, too slightly to be perceptible to human measurements but perhaps enough to set up stresses or weaknesses which favor the occurrence of earthquakes. Whatever the cause, the recent epidemic of shocks can be no accident. Even the two volcanic eruptions are probably distant symptoms of some single cause. The two families of catastrophes that now afflict us, those of the weather, are perhaps separate from each other. That far it is conceivable that the arm of coincidence can reach. At least, there is no evidence that the condition of the sun induces the terrestrial ague along with the chills and fevers of the atmosphere.—New York Herald Tribune.

DELIVERING THE GOODS.

We have read a number of articles in newspapers and magazines expressing grave concern over the present tendency towards severer treatment of crime. "Is the world going to give up all that has been gained in the movement towards more humane methods in dealing with the so-called criminal classes?" we are smoothly asked.

No, the world is not going to give up anything in the way of prison reform, fair trials, etc., that was ever worth getting. We are not going back to brutality in prison management, and to the rough-shod overriding of any genuine right of those who are brought before our courts on charges of crime. The movement for reform in these matters was essentially right, and the ground that was gained will be maintained.

Those who are responsible for such legislation as the Baumes enactments in New York are merely working to strip the humane movement in the treatment of law-breakers from certain parasitic accretions which in themselves are not humane at all, but tend right in the opposite direction. The new movement is aimed at the coddling of criminals which, in its inevitable results, increases crime.

Since the Baumes laws went into effect in New York, every test that could be applied has added to the evidence that they are steadily reducing the worst forms of crime in that state. The new police commissioner of New York City has just made a report for the second quarter of 1927, the first three months of his incumbency, and comparison with the same three months of 1926 and 1925 shows an improvement without precedent in New York's recent history. If the object of our criminal laws and courts is to reduce crime and protect society, the Baumes plan is delivering the goods.—Columbus Dispatch.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

If you have been married seven years walk softly and speak sweetly. There is danger in the air. Chicago courts grant 17,000 divorces a year. The average duration of the marriages is seven years. The commonest charge is desertion, which means that the couple has been separated two years. But a small percentage of men and women with children come to the divorce court.

Thomas A. Edison, old man, keeps on working. He is recruiting college students to help develop native rubber plants. The smarter the man the more likely he is to continue working when he is old if his health lets him. It ought to give all of us—from Edison all the way down—much satisfaction to find there is always plenty to do. What a dismal world it would be if there were no jobs.

Hoover, secretary of commerce, predicts air traffic will increase to 25,000 miles daily by January 1. Hoover doesn't do much guessing. He generally knows what he is talking about.

If he is right about this prediction it means that air mileage in the United States next year will equal that of Europe. Who said Uncle Sam was so far behind in flying?

If you are elected to office don't be so sure it is because of your popularity. It may be mostly on account of the other fellow's unpopularity, which is a little greater than yours.

There will be many elections in this country this fall. Elections are important for two reasons. First, by means of them we have a chance to get better officers in high places. In the second place, elections make us think about our government, our democracy. Anything that makes us think about that is important.

Think about election. Think about candidates. Exercise your privilege to vote—and exercise your mind by thinking.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Aug. 9—This is a true story of what happened to a girl in New York. She came from a small town in Vermont—a high school graduate of respectable parents in ordinary circumstances and became a hat check girl in a large hotel.

It was not a job to her liking, but the only one at hand. Life did not treat her kindly. Her nights were spent in loneliness in a cheap rooming-house and her days in checking hats. In her rooming-house—this was before prohibition—she met a young man.

He was uneducated and his job was that of a night bartender in a cafe. Propinquity developed a friendship flowering into love and in the end she married him. The marriage ran smoothly for awhile and then hit the rocks.

The girl wanted to get on, but found she was chained to a hopeless clod and so cut adrift and studied stenography. After a preliminary period of job after job she became the secretary to a man of large affairs. She became indispensable to him in many ways.

He finally divorced his wife and married her. From a rooming-house she was transported to a country home with servants, limousines, jewels and various baubles that go with wealth. She went abroad, had her regular seats to the opera and studied voice and languages.

Her drab life was blotted out by the new. That was seven years ago. Her name in recent years has been often seen among smart gatherings listed in newspapers. One evening recently they were motoring from the theater to their country place.

She had grown thirsty and suggested stopping at one of the roadhouses along the way for a lemonade. The chauffeur drew up at one and a captain led them to a table and took the order. A waiter brought it. She happened to glance at him. He was the ex-bartender and ex-husband. They did not speak.

Edna Ferber dropped into a department store the other day for her latest book to autograph for a friend.

"Have you 'Mother Knows Best' by Ferber?" she asked the clerk. In a sleepy fashion he shuffled off, coming back twice to ask the name.

On his last return he inquired: "Is it the author's last book?"

"I think it will be," replied Miss Ferber in weary resignation.

There is a story concerning one of those dignified, ritualistic households so peculiar to New York. Things move with automatic precision year in and year out—the afternoon bridge, dressing for dinner, the butler arriving with cocktails, the solemn meal and so on. The young daughter of the household who has endured it all for a long while with patience disturbed the diners the other evening with an hysterical screech. "Heavens!" she exclaimed, "Father has different shirt studs tonight."

Views of Those in Public Eye.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER.

Nicholas Murray Butler was born at Elizabeth, New Jersey, April 2, 1862. He has been president of Columbia university, New York City, since 1902, and has been connected with the school in other capacities since 1885. He has been prominent in Republican politics and has received votes at national conventions of his party for both vice presidential and presidential nominations. Butler has been honored by many nations and universities for his work in the advancement of education.

Dr. Butler recently returned from Europe where he was feted and dined, and is naturally more wedded than ever to the plan of his corps of professors to buy the good will of Europe. He says:

"The exaggerated and almost hysterical nationalism, particularly in the newly-made nations, which has followed the war, complicates and retards the process of economic cooperation and recovery. It would seem, however, that the forces for making for international economic co-operation and association are much too fundamental to be long resisted. Thoughtful men of every land do not conceal their anxiety for the economic and financial future of the world, unless some of the provisions of the treaty of Versailles can be either modified or superseded. The continued presence of allied soldiers on the right bank of the Rhine, despite the many evidences of good will which Germany has given, and despite the cordial cooperation between Dr. Stresemann and M. Briand, gives to the German irreconcilables their strongest argument for remaining in opposition to the new tendencies. It would be a gain for France and for the rest of Europe, as well as for Germany, if that occupation might quickly cease.

"The public declarations made some months ago by the faculty of political science of Columbia university relative to the allied debts and war reparations have made a profound impression in Europe, as they did in the United States. Supported as they are by practically every economist of standing in the world and by a host of students of public finance, their statements clearly indicate the road that must be followed sooner or later."

Dinner Stories.

There came a peremptory knock at the door and into the editor's private sanctum walked a very angry man.

"You are the editor of Welch Warbler?" he snapped.

"Yes."

"My name is Morgan T. David. Yesterday your paper printed an article about me. You called me a thief, a robber, a blackleg and a lot of other things!"

"We did," said the editor.

"Well, sir, I'm here to tell you, by thunder, my middle initial is T. and not H. If you can't spell my name correctly have the goodness to leave it alone."

"Isn't it rather annoying to have them both calling on you at once?" asked her dearest friend.

"No; perfectly delightful," said the young woman with two devoted slaves. "You see, dear, I seat one on each side of me."

"Well?"

"And there's such a decided contrast between them that I always feel very comfortable."

His geography, his job and his personality are just right.

Everybody knows who he is. The worst thing it's possible to say about him is that he's a very political politician. He's temperamentally neutral—non antagonistic. But he's smart as a whip. He has poise and tact and experience.

He's immensely popular in congress and has precisely the gifts to make himself so with the voters.

Marion Big Four Railroad Men Back Bellefontaine Team In Elimination Event

Group from Neighboring Town To Engage in Series of Baseball Matches with Other New York Central Outfits

Marion employes of the Big Four railroad are pulling for the Bellefontaine baseball team, champions of the Big Four, who will play a series of games during the next two weeks with the champs of other New York Central Lines in an elimination tourney to decide who will finally clash with the Pennsy title holders for the railroad championship.

Bellefontaine, representing the Indianapolis division of the Big Four, of which Marion is a part, has won 17 games and lost only two during the entire season. Two of its players are Pine and Rowan, both members of the Marion Athletics.

Indianapolis and Bellefontaine were tied for first place at the close of the regularly scheduled season but in the play-off the Logan County team walloped Indianapolis 8 to 1.

Meets Cleveland

As Big Four champ, Bellefontaine this afternoon will meet Cleveland, New York Central Lake Erie champ, at Bellefontaine. Next Saturday it will clash with the Michigan Central champion at Bellefontaine. On Wednesday, Aug. 17, the champions of this division will journey to Chicago to meet the title holder of the New York Central Western group and finally will clash with Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie champion. The last game mentioned will be played at Bellefontaine Saturday, Aug. 20.

Local railroaders are greatly interested in the campaign to be undertaken by the Bellefontaine outfit.

"I ENJOY BETTER HEALTH THAN I HAVE IN YEARS"

Another Marion Man Tells of the Great Change Konjola Has Made in Him

I had been suffering with neuritis besides stomach and kidney trouble but today I enjoy better health than I have in years and all of this great change came over me after I began taking Konjola.

MR. L. W. McCOMBS

This statement is from Mr. L. W. McCombs, 309 South Grand Ave., who is one of the latest well known residents of this city to indorse Konjola, the celebrated new medicine which The Konjola Man is explaining in person to large crowds throughout each day at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion.

"I had neuritis about 12 years," said Mr. McCombs, "and it got so bad recently that I thought I would have to give up. My shoulders and arms were a solid mass of aches and pains. My stomach trouble was the very worst kind, distress, indigestion pains, gas bloating and vomiting. Owing to weak kidneys I was subject to other miseries, such as rising 4 or 5 times a night and always having sharp pains in my back.

"I treated and doctored for all of these troubles a long time, but it was in vain. I kept on suffering. Then I found this new Konjola, and now everything is different. The neuritis pains have left my arms and there is not a bit of misery anywhere in my system. My stomach never gives me any trouble and I am eating more than ever. The action of my kidneys is perfect. I don't have to get up once at night and all the aches and pains disappeared from my back.

"I am glad to have my name added to the great list of people who are praising Konjola."

PLANS SALE OF SEWAGE WASTE AS FERTILIZER

City Solicitor Geran Tells Council Disposal Plant Will Produce Revenue

Marion's sewage disposal plant, recently declared by experts as being one of the best in the country, will become a revenue producer for the city if plans outlined at council meeting last night work out successfully.

Investigation has shown that sludge which accumulates at the plant from the flow of sewage is a fertilizer of exceptional value and arrangements were made last night to offer the material for sale.

City Solicitor Geran, who outlined the plan to council, stated it is estimated that sale of the fertilizer will net the city between $1000 and $2000 annually. On his recommendation council authorized expenditure of a small amount of money for advertising the by-product for sale.

The solicitor acted as spokesman for officials of the sewage plant and ... who conducted the investigation and experiments which have shown the value of the fertilizer.

Odorless Material

The sludge, an odorless material which accumulates as sediment from sewage after treatment, was tested on the lawn surrounding the plant and proved to be an exceptionally effective fertilizer, council was informed. It is claimed to be superior to any commercial fertilizer now on the market.

Although no definite plan has been worked out, Geran said that it has been proposed to offer the fertilizer at a price of $1 a cubic yard delivered or at a lower figure to persons who provide their own transportation. City trucks will deliver the fertilizer to those who have no means of conveyance.

Absorbed by Soil

A cubic yard of the material will be sufficient for 1,000 cubic feet of ground, officials estimate. It is spread on the ground in lump or powdered form and is then completely absorbed by the soil.

In the past the sludge has been a waste product, being hauled from the plant and dumped on land nearby.

City officials who conducted the investigation are of the opinion that all of the by-product can be marketed in Marion and nearby for use on lawns and farms.

Clarence M. Young, Des Moines, Ia., has been appointed director of the aeronautics branch of the U. S. Department of Commerce. The position has been created by the department because of the increase of national interest in commercial aviation.

DAILY TESTED RECIPE

CHEESE SOUFFLE

Make a cream sauce with one tablespoon flour and one and one-half cups milk. Add four tablespoons of grated cheese, stir until cheese is melted, then fold in the yolks and whites of two eggs beaten separately. Pour into well buttered pan and sprinkle top with bread crumbs. Set dish in a pan of water. Bake for twenty minutes, fifteen with cover on, five with it off.

HERE'S THAT SWAYING HEMLINE

THE flair for the swaying hemline is being expressed in any number of ways that detract but slightly, if at all, from the straight line, pencil silhouette. Godets, apron fronts, tiers and drape-around skirts are all employed in the full mode of the swaying hemline. There's nothing particularly new about any of them, nor do they put the straight line frock out of business. It's a safe bet the straight line silhouette will go on right through the winter, though the swaying hemline and the discreet flare will make their influence felt as the season advances.

In the above sketch the artist illustrates how the swaying hemline is being incorporated by means of godets, the apron drape and tiers. In the model at the upper left we find one of the new sheer wool materials interpreted in a bolero theme, the sway of the bolero balanced in the sway of the hemline by means of godets at either side.

Another swaying hemline achieved by means of the godet will be found in the lower right hand corner of the sketch. This is a coat dress of navy blue wool material trimmed with cire braid. Godets of silk or satin are let in in pairs at the sides.

The lower left hand corner sketch shows the swaying hemline achieved by the wrap-around drape of the skirt. This frock is of satin back crepe, the material being used reversely for trim. Note how the sway of the partial bolero is balanced in the sway of the wrap-around drape. The tier sway is shown in the upper right corner of the sketch.

The central figure shows a frock of satin crepe with the satin side out and the dull used for trimming. This model shows the swaying hemline achieved in the apron drape. The dull side of the crepe borders the circular apron, and makes the applied band of points forming the girdle, which extends across the front only. Ties, like apron strings, break the flat back of the frock.

FOR Acid Stomach
PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy, stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25c BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

No! Veritan's plain face and smoldering eyes betrayed that he was anything but charmed at my invitation but I caught a demure glint of interest in Marta's eyes which bolstered my decision to wait for vouchers for the personable youth who recognized my decision with an apparently grateful smile and a conventional "Thank you so much," and then turned toward the dog which had not moved from its position of adoring watchfulness at Eleanor Lincoln's feet.

"Come, Fedor," he commanded.

The dog paid no attention to him whatever and the young man repeated the command more sternly.

The dog turned his head ever so slightly, looked at the man and then with the superb insolence which only a thoroughbred wolfhound or collie can achieve, turned back to his worship of the girl whom he had greeted so rapturously a few minutes before.

The man's face crimsoned—I fancied that he was not accustomed to disobedience in either human beings or animals—there was an unmistakable air of authority about him—and he thrust out his hands as if to grasp the animal's collar.

It was then that we witnessed as efficient an exhibition of presence of mind as I ever have seen. The dog with almost unbelievable quickness turned his head and snapped at the outstretched hand, yet even as he did so Miss Lincoln's hand snatched at his collar and her voice sounded peremptorily—"Fedor! Down!"

There was not a rose-leaf's thickness to spare between those powerful fangs and the hand of the man who had been caring for Fedor. But it sufficed. He drew back his hand unscathed. But his eyes were blazing as he looked at the girl who just had saved his hand from being mangled.

"This is what comes," he began, but she struck in and finished his sentence with a rudeness unexplainable except for some desperate need for silencing him.

"Of taking care of other people's dogs by anybody who is not wholly a dog worshipper," she said. "Fortunately, however, Fedor evidently has adopted me. I am sure he will obey me. If you will stand aside from the door I will take him over to your car."

She is treated deferentially and the management goes out of its way to be attentive.

She meets SCHUYLER SMYTHE soon after her arrival. She learns from MRS. BANNISTER that Schuyler and NAN FOSDICK, a big athletic girl, [illegible] Schuyler insists that he met Vee [illegible] years before in Palm Beach. Schuyler is ardently attentive, much to the jealousy of Nan Fosdick. When Vera and Schuyler leave the swimming pool ahead of the others they are surprised by Nan Fosdick, who hurriedly followed them.

CHAPTER XIII

VEE-VEE'S hands shook with cold and nervousness as she stripped off her wet bathing suit. A [illegible] shower of lukewarm water [illegible] her [illegible] But oh, she didn't want to think! She wanted only to [illegible] allow those delicious tremors of delight to shudder along her nerves. What had he said? She tried not to remember, to [illegible] for the sake of the sharp [illegible] his voice back to her. "Vee-Vee. That's—adorable. But it will have to be to suit you."

"Was I too eager? Too forward?" she questioned herself anxiously as she settled herself before the mirror.

As she dressed quickly, a little disturbed at the time she had lost in dreaming, she thought a little with pity. "That poor girl with her little glittering black eyes like [illegible] shoe buttons, her broad thick mouth suddenly tight with pain. She loved him, too. And she had undoubtedly had reason to hope. Vee-Vee had been too recently plain and neglected herself to be able to forget now the pain of being passed by, of loving without return.

"But I'm not going to let maudlin pity for a rich girl cheat me out of my birthright," she told herself fiercely, as she slipped the dress she had chosen over her sleek burnished head.

She had chosen the dress with all the cunningness of a woman who plans to fight without quarter. In it she knew she looked utterly feminine, distractingly pretty.

The others were waiting for her in the lounge, Schuyler Smythe immaculate and arrestingly handsome in white flannel trousers, John Bannister trying to look like a country gentleman in baggy tweeds that were funny; Mrs. Bannister in a blue silk sweater and white skirt; Nan Fosdick in a sleeveless white silk tennis frock, of the pattern made famous by Mlle. Lenglen. Against the blue-white of the silk her big, muscular arms and her broad face looked as brown as an Indian's. She had dabbed powder on her face—white powder—which had caked in perspiration of her upper lip and on her low brown forehead. A pang of pity, unwanted, quickly aroused, tugged at Vee-Vee's heart, which had not yet learned to be ruthless.

"Mr. Bannister and I have our cars outside," Schuyler told her, his eyes alight with admiration. "Unfortunately mine is a roadster, or I could take the whole party. You are the most beautiful thing I ever looked at," he added in a voice too low for the others to hear as he took her arm to guide her out of the lounge and down the half flight of steps to the main lobby.

"Sunday is a terrible day here," Mrs. Bannister began eagerly, as she seized her husband's arm and came trotting after Vee-Vee and Schuyler. "The [illegible] can't do a thing but play golf and they won't let us dance on Sunday night so there is really nothing to do but drive over to [illegible] Snyder's for [illegible] Where's Miss Fosdick? Hurry dear," she called to the girl who had lagged behind.

"I'm not coming!" Nan Fosdick stopped on the stairs and called out in a low furious voice. She tore off her unbecoming white felt hat, twisted it between her hands.

Schuyler Smythe's hand closed tightly over Vee-Vee's arm before he turned to face the girl on the stairs.

"Not coming, Nan?" His voice was politely surprised and regretful. "Why?"

"Mother—wants me to play cribbage with her," Nan Fosdick answered desperately, raising her hand to hide the trembling of her chin.

Vee-Vee knew how she felt, knew that she wanted Schuyler Smythe to come bounding eagerly up those stairs to whisper an ardent plea in her ear. He really ought to—but Vee-Vee hoped fiercely that he wouldn't. If Nan Fosdick stayed at the hotel, in a temper, he—Vee-Vee—could sit beside Schuyler uncrowded by the big girl's bulk, could have his undivided attention on the long drive to Snyder's roadhouse.

"Awfully sorry, Nan. You ought to discipline your mother better than that, or teach her to play solitaire," Schuyler said with casual sympathy.

The Bannisters drove away first in their coupe, Mrs. Bannister leaning out the lowered window to wave a gay farewell.

"We'll look for you when we see you coming!"

Vee-Vee felt herself blushing, began to make a hasty comment on the roadster which Schuyler was helping her into, his fingers pressing thrillingly upon her elbow.

"Oh, it must look rather commonplace to you after the foreign cars you've driven," he answered, and rancor stirred faintly under her joy that he should belittle anything of his to her. It wasn't very good taste—but she pushed the traitor thought back, smiled at him, a cool flicker of light in her clear green eyes. But what did he mean by referring to foreign cars that she had driven? The person that she was unintentionally impersonating must have great wealth, have lived abroad—

For the first few minutes of the drive to which she had looked forward with so much eagerness Vee-Vee could not give herself over to pure enjoyment. Questions tormented her, and she could not get Nan Fosdick's angry sullen face, with its bitterly twisted mouth, out of her mind.

"I know what you're thinking," Schuyler surprised her by cutting in on her miserable thoughts. "That impossible little Mrs. Bannister has been gossiping, I see. What did she tell you?"

"Hundreds of things." Vee-Vee laughed but her voice was strained. "The lake drive is lovely, isn't it?" she added.

The dark green roadster was gliding swiftly along a narrow road that now hugged the lake front. The fresh sweet odor of growing things made her nostrils quiver with delight. A squirrel flashed across their path.

"If she told you that I am engaged to be married to Nan Fosdick, she lied," Schuyler Smythe said. "I've been nice to the child because she seemed to be having such a beastly unpleasant time of it with that old war-horse of a mother."

"She's in love with you!" Vee-Vee cried impulsively, then could have bitten her tongue.

"I'm sorry," Schuyler said grimly. "That is, I'm sorry if it is true. I—hope it isn't. But oh, Vee-Vee, we mustn't spoil this first precious hour alone together by talking of Nan Fosdick or anyone else." He swerved the car suddenly into a road that was scarcely more than a path. A quick twist of his fingers upon the ignition key shut off the engine. His dark eyes turned upon her a little fearful of his daring but glowing with a fire that kindled her own blood.

"Aren't you—presuming—rather a great deal?" Vee-Vee asked jerkily, a strange fear of having this thing hurried too fast clutching at her heart. Men flirted with girls whom they considered "easy." Maybe she had let him see too much—Aunt Flora had said—But she could not remember what her aunt had said—she could not remember anything with his face close to hers, his eyes on fire like that.

"Presuming! My God!" Schuyler groaned, his hand clenching and unclenching on the steering wheel. "But of course you can't know—all these years—five years—"

"What do you mean?" Vee-Vee gasped. "I don't understand!"

"Of course you wouldn't. It didn't mean everything to you—but it meant everything to me. Why, Vee-Vee, you danced with me! I held you in my arms, could have touched your glorious hair. It was longer then, a mop of copper-red curls that lay like autumn leaves against your adorable white forehead. Don't you remember? I told you then that I would never forget, and you laughed at me, went on to your next partner. But—I haven't forgotten—all these years. See! I've carried your picture. It was just a snapshot that they printed in the papers. It was just that there were so many who wanted you—rich, a beauty." He was fumbling in his breast pocket, drew out a flat hand-tooled brown leather pocketbook. "See? I clipped it from the Sunday paper, have carried it ever since."

Vee-Vee took the limp clipping, her eyes searching first for a bit of type which would give her a clue to the girl's identity. But there was no caption to the picture; Schuyler Smythe had not needed to be reminded of who she was. It was a picture of a laughing girl, with wind-tossed short curls, a tennis racket in her right hand, a skirt that looked funny now because it was so long, whipping about her beautifully shaped ankles. The girl in the picture undoubtedly resembled Vee-Vee, might have been Vee-Vee of five years before if that Vee-Vee had a long curly bob and had not worn disfiguring glasses.

Schuyler Smythe took the picture from her lax hands and pressed it against his lips. A sharp stab of jealousy shot through her heart. He loved that mysterious other girl whom he had met five years ago. It was not Vee-Vee Cameron at all that he loved. She was an impostor, an unwilling impostor, warming her hands at a fire that had been lighted five years before and tended by a romantic idealist.

As Schuyler Smythe was fumbling with his pocketbook to restore the snapshot to its proper place a letter dropped out, fell to the floor of the car. Vee-Vee's eyes, following its course, mechanically widened with bewildered surprise, as they took in the address.

Events become more complicated than ever. How long before Vee-Vee will realize she is playing a dangerous game?
